THE NEW RUSH LINES

PURDUE, DE PAUW AND BUTLER GETTING IN SHAPE AGAIN.

Preliminary Work Shows the Collegiate Football League Will Have Several Strong Elevens.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 15 .- Balliet, the great Princeton "Tiger" who snapped the ball to victory for the Presbyterians last year, placed his critical eye on the Purdue eleven yesterday as they made their first appearance on the field for the year, and pronounced them good. The great center rush appears in splendid form and is enthusiastic for the Purdue team, for which Princeton has been godparent for Captain Fulkerson created much enthusiasm by his fine exhibition of spirit and much improvement is expected to result from his leadership. The familiar figures of Finney and Little are missed, but their places are filled by men of fine promise. Finney is now coaching a crack team at Lexington, Ky., and Little is devoting his time to his farm in Lake county, having graduated last year. Robertson, the Dakota man whose power was discovered late last season, will hold his place in center and will honor Stevenson's old place. Fulkerson will resume his place as right guard and Breen, a new man from Lawrence, Mass., who received a proposition from the Harvard manager, but who left guard. Gerber is a candidate for Finney's old place, and Leland Webb, a strapping youth of twenty-three stone, is close after Jesse Little's old place. Buschman and Alph Jamison will hold their places behind the line. Marshall and Fred Jamison are close after the full back, with odds in favor of Jamison. Latta, of Goshen, and Heile, of Chicago, both men of experience, are close contestants for quarter, while the aspirants for end are legion. Smith, from the University of Cincinnati, a new man; Brownell, McHenry, Kinnaird and Learcy, of the old "second eleven," are close after first places and competition is high. Rigid training has commenced and the men are now on severe diet and under compulsion to keep good hours. Failure to observe proper rules of training means dismissal from the team. Manager Kennon has arranged for games with Ann Arbor, Wisconsin and Stagg's teams, outside of the Indiana association, and arrangements are pending with Oberlin, Northwestern and the University of Illinois. Notwithstanding published statements to the contrary, the University of Illinois does not seem to care to meet Purdue and suggests terms which preclude any agreement under the code.

DePauw Will Have a Big Team. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENCASTLE, Ind., Sept. 15.-With the opening of DePauw University comes the usual football craze. Organization and practice will begin next week. The De Pauw management has not been idle this year by any means, and this fall will find the university with one of the strongest teams in the West. The practice field has been put in tip-top condition and soon lovers of sport may see the oval kicked over the gridiron field by the sturdy athletes. Manager Church and Captain Dunn have been working energetically during the past summer to get material together, and their efforts have been fairly successful. Six of last year's eleven will be in line, and this will make a good nucleus for a starter. In the line will be found as guards Roller and Mitchell, as strong as any pair in the West in those positions. Sedgwick, as tackle, did splendid work last year, and more is expected of him this year. Dee, as end, is experienced, and was playing a phenomenal game last season when his career was cut short by an injury. Unfortunately, Terrell, last year's center, received a broken ankle this summer and will not be able to play. However, some promising material has been secured and center will be strong. Back of the line will be Captain Dunn and Kuykendall as halfs. They are fine players and experienced. Captain Dunn's work, last year, was superb and he is a daring player. A promising fullback has been secured and some strong material was developed on last year's second eleven. Some good players will be among the new arrivals. E. S. Smith, of Wesleyan Colege, has been se-cured as coacher. Mr. Smith comes highly recommended and has had four years' experience with the crack teams of the East. The team will take two extensive practice tours, one through Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, and the other into Kentucky and Tennessee. The football outlook at DePauw this fall is brighter than ever.

Butler's Football Team. The Butler University football schedule has been arranged as follows:

Oct. 13, against Purdue, at Indianapolis; Oct. 20, against Rose Polytechnic Institute. at Terre Haute; Nov. 3, against Indiana University, at Bloomington; Nov. 10, against

The members of the team will not be selected until next week, as there is considerable raw material from which to choose. The team promises to be a good one and football enthusiasm is at a high pitch. George Cullom, of Purdue, formerly on the Butler team, is coaching and has the best players already hard at work. The unusually early opening of the college is especially favorable to football practice and the men are taking advantage of their op-portunities. The team's business manager, Carlos Recker, is in communication with an Eastern coacher, who will come down two weeks before the first game to give the men some extra help. But two of last year's team, Hall and Lester, are back, but there is much promising material among the new

Pepper's Steady Pitching and Good All-Around Work Turn the Trick -The Other Winners Yesterday.

Crooks and Werden and their followers came back to us yesterday and were received with open arms and base hits enough. to make them think their welcome altogether too warm. They did not get into the game until the fourth inning, and then made such an impression that it looked, for a few moments, as though they might get away with the big end of the score. Their hope was a delusive one, however, and Sharsig's men shattered it in the sixth by taking a lead that was never overcome. As usual, Crooks and Werden had much to say during the game, sometimes to the umpire, occasionally to the bleachers and frequently from the coaching line. Crooks played a great base, cutting off several ugly hits and covering lots of ground. Four double plays by the Minneapolis infield testify to the efforts made by the visitors to head off the winners who would not, however, be denied. Indianapolis played the better ball and hit considerably harder. In the first place, Pepper was as steady as a clock and gave only one base on balls, and that in the ninth inning. In the next place, he had some very fine support, Gray, McCarthy and Henry pulling down long, dangerous looking drives at critical moments. Burns also spoiled a home run for Shields by getting under a ball that appeared out of his reach in the seventh and shutting off two Indianapolis runs. McCarthy, Roat, Motz and Pepper were very much in evidence so far as batting went, and most of the runs were due to their work with the stick. So clean was the fielding of the home team that Minneapolis had to earn six of their Motz scored the first Indianapolis run, getting his base on balls in the second and being batted in by Mills and Roat. The latter's hit was a three-bagger to the leftfield fence. There were two out when he made it, Mills having been doubled with Westlake, and as Shields was retired from Hines to Werden, Roat could not score. Motz opened the fourth with a three-base drive to that old home-run spot of his in right center, and scored on Baker's drop of Mills's hard line hit. The error cost nothing, however, as Motz could have scored on the play had Baker held the ball, or on Westlake's single which followed. With two men on base and nobody out there was a fine outlook, which failed to develop, however, as the succeeding three batsmen were rather easily retired. The way the visitors landed on Pepper in the last half of the fourth was somewhat discouraging. Crooks and Burns hit for three bases each, while Hines and Werden got doubles, Hulen a sacrifice and Burrell a long fly to McCarthy, all of which earned four runs. Wilson hit safe to left, but was caught trying to steal second. In the fifth McCarthy's terrific drive straight over Burns's head would have been a homer had the runner not been lame. He reached third and came in on Henry's single to left. A double play and another grounder to Crooks prevented more runs. In the following inning, however, West-lake's base on balls, Crook's fumble, Shields being hit by pitcher, Pepper's two-bagger to center and McCarthy's single yielded four more Indianapolis runs and took the starch out of Crooks and his fol-lowers. Pepper's double to left, McCarthy's single, Gray's base on balls, Motz's three-bagger and singles by Mills and Roat ran the Indianapolis string up to eleven in the Singles by Crooks, Hines and Burrell and Burns's double earned two more for Minneapolis in the last half. In the ninth Fraser led with a single to center and Baker reached first on balls. Crooks struck out and Gray, after a hard run, dropped Burns's short fly, but caught Baker on a force at second. In trying to throw Fraser out at third on the same play, how-ever, Gray got the ball out of Mills's reach and the runner scored. Hines lifted a fly to McCarthy and the game was over. Attendance, 600. ATTACKS OF RABIES

CHALK MEIKEL APPARENTLY SUI FERS FROM HYDROPHOBIA.

Yet He Has Never Been Bitten by Dog-A Strange Medical Case.

A case that will probably attract .wide spread attention in the medical world is that of Chalk Meikel, of Mapleton, who is ill with symptoms of hydrophobia, but who was never bitten by a dog or any other animal. From his birth, nineteen years ago, he has been in very poor health, and added to this his mind is slightly deranged. His parents had little control of him, and the little money that he obtained slipped through his hands. About five weeks ago his brother Frank, aged twelve years, was bitten by a mad dog, but he has recovered from all effects and is apparently in as good health as he ever was. Chalk is of an excitable nature, and the mad dog scare and the biting of his brother had a peculiar effect on him. He acted excitedly at times, and his family and the immediate friends thought that he would go violently insane. However, his condition changed to a normal state and the matter was forgotten. Two weeks ago he went to visit his grandfather, who lives in Jolietville, a small town twenty-two miles northwest of the city. Last Sunday evening, while running over a rocky road, he stumbled and fell heavily on a large stone. A large bruise was made on his body just above his heart, and home-made salves and other remedies were administered to the injury. He was not seemingly otherwise affected until a day or two afterward. Then he began to act as if afflicted with the rables. He was seized with convulsions and snapped and bit at those who came around him. This was followed by a barking that was so natural that it was hard to distinguish it from that of a dog. This spell lasted only a short time, and he apparently recovered. A short time afterward he was seized with a like attack, but the symptoms of hydrophobia became more marked, as he began to froth at the mouth. Six physicians were called in to attend him, and they pronounced it a genuine case of rables. Chalk's relatives whom he was visiting did not remember of him having been bitten by any animal, and did not notify his parents of his condition, as they thought he was suffering with a severe attack of fits. On that day his condition reached an alarming stage, and his parents were in-formed that he was suffering with the

Mr. Meikel went to Jolietville and brought him home. On the way he had no diculty with his son and he decided that the reports of his condition had been exaggerated. As soon as he arrived at his home, however, the symptoms of rables re-appeared, and Dr. Carter, of Mapleton, was summoned. He found the sufferer lying on the bed, frothing at the mouth and barking. In a few minutes he showed an inclination to snap and bite, and the strength of several men was required to hold him in bed. Chalk discharged froth from his mouth to such an extent that those holding him placed cloths over their faces to keep it from touching any part that would allow the virus to work into their systems. Dr. Carter administered narcotics and Chalk fell into a semi-conscious state. On arousing he startled his physician and those around his bedside by talking with them as he did when in his normal condition. The attendants tried to turn the drift of conversation from his illness, but he suddenly began to talk about being fatally ill. One of his boy companions told him that a young lady acquaintance had sent him a beautiful bouquet of flowers. His father told him the young lady's name and Chalk said: "Well, she ought to have brought them to me a few days later." "Why?" he was asked. "Oh, well," was the reply, "I will be dead then and the flowers could be put on my grave." He continued to talk in that hopeless strain while he had the use Chalk fell into a semi-conscious state. On that hopeless strain while he had the use

. Presently he was siezed with another attack of the supposed rables, and the attention of those around him was directed to keeping him under control. Another application of narcotics was given him and he fell asleep.

Last night he was still in that condition, but the twitching of his muscles was not neticed, and Dr. Carter had hopes that his patient had recovered from his singular at-tacks or that they would be less violent. Dr. Carter will undoubtedly call in physiclans to help make a diagnosis of the case He believes that Melkel's condition is due to a highly nervous prostration, and that his mind has become pervaded with the horrors of the mad-dog scare of several weeks ago and that he is suffering from an imaginary case of hydrophobia. The Doctor is of the opinion that his violent spells are but severe attacks of hysteria, yet he admits that the supporters of the theory that hydrophobia is an imaginary disease have a strong proof in Meikel's case of their belief.

TEXTILE WORKERS' STRIKE.

Thirty-Eight Thousand Operatives Now Idle at Fall River. FALL RIVER, Mass., Sept. 15.-The spinners' and weavers' associations both held crowded meetings this afternoon, and as a result 38,000 textile operatives of this city are practically on strike. The spinners held a special general meeting in Carrollton Hall and unanimously voted to strike. The executive committee recommended that the strike allowance be reduced from $5 to $4 per week, and after the second week to $3 until further action be taken. The Weavers' Association also held a big meeting this forenoon in Music Hall. The weavers voted to continue the "vaca-tion" until the old rate of wages is restored, but as they refuse to go to work under the present rates they are virtually out on strike. Sargent Will Be Re-Elected.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sapt. 15 .- Conferences have been held in various State delegations of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, and from present indications the grand lodge officers be re-elected without opposition. A hot fight is being made by representatives of Milwaukee, Detroit and Evansville for the next biennial convention. The proposition to raise funds for the relief of the Lehigh Valley strikers the relief of the Lehigh Valley strikers was discussed at the afternoon session without reaching a decision.

Resolutions were introduced regarding the position taken by Vice Grand Master Hannahan in advising members of the brotherhood who went out during the Pullman sympathetic strike, not to work with non-union men. An effort was made to have his course fully endorsed but this failed. The officials to-night refuse to say just what was done with the resolutions, but from the best information obtainable it is believed they were dropped without action.

SNAKES IN THE WELL.

Water Poisoned by Big Green Reptiles and Many Persons Made III.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15 .- A number of cititens in the Ogle Station neighborhood, seven miles from Belleville, St. Clair county. Illinois, have recently been taken suddenly sick without any apparent cause. The symptoms were violent pains in the stomach, dizziness and nausea. Children as well as grown people were attacked in several families, and the doctors could not solve the mystery. It seemed as if the people had been poisoned, but all recovered gradually, after having purged vio-lently and partaken freely of warm drinks. The solution of the sickness has finally been solved. Water for drinking and cook-ing purposes had been taken from a well near the Ogle farm for many years by the farmers' families, living in the vicinity. This well had become the nest of a family of big green snakes, which are said to have poisoned the water to such an extent that it is marveious that those taken sick recovered. There was much among the farmers when they found that the well was alive with reptiles. Some few were brought to the surface, but the greater number, when the water was disturbed, crawled to a place of safety through the crevices of the rocks. The finding of the specker in the swell and what promises the snakes in the well ended what promised to be a great sensation of a whole neighborhood being poisoned by unknown

M. P. Handy, in New York Mail and Ex-A novel based upon the incidents of the Pullman strike is promised from the pen of Miss French, of Davenport, Ia., whose pen name is Octave Thanet. During the strike she went to Chicago and, taking up her residence in Pullman, devoted herself to a patient study of the philosophy of labor troubles. The theme is worthy of an effort of genius and Octave Thanet is such a keen observer and has such wonderful descriptive powers that she cannot fail to make a story that will be valuable as well as in-

It is quite the fashion nowadays for nov-elists to apply the journalistic instinct to the choice of their subjects and the reporter's methods to the ascertainment of the facts upon which their stories are to be founded. Of course the same practice has been followed in exceptional cases in times past, and notably by Charles Reade, Charles Dickens and Victor Hugo; but not to the extent to which it now prevails. Zola's "Lourdes" is a remarkable latter-day instance of the result of genius taking pains to know whereof it tells.

IT STOPS THE PROGRESS of Consumption. The makers of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are certain of it. They've proved it for years past—and they're willing to sell it with the agreement that if it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, they'll return the money. Consumption is that scrofulous condition that comes from impure blood. The "Discovery" prevents it, if taken in time; cures it completely, if you haven't waited too long; gives relief and comfort, even in advanced cases. Use it in severe, lingering Coughs, Asthma, Weak Lungs, and every Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Affection.

D. C. ROSENBALM, ESQ., of Dutch, Grainger Co., Tenn., writes as follows: "I had been going down in strength and weight for months. I was not able to stir and I smothered work often. I smothered very often. After taking 'Discovery' my cough was relieved, I could walk three miles without trouble, catching cold don't distress me now. As long as I live I'll praise 'G. M. D.'"
